THE OPEN DOOR POLICY WILL PREVAIL IN COUNTRY'S THEATRES.

Shuberts, According to Reports From Chicago, Have Struck a Bold Stroke Against the Trust.

GET ONE NIGHT STANDS

By Purchase of Big Circuit for Which They Pay Close to a Million Dollars.
Lively War Expected Before Fall Months Roll Around.

United Press Telegram.
CHICAGO, June 23.—A deal has been completed whereby the Shuberts, independent in the theatrical field, claim to have secured control of the "one night stand" business of the whole country. They announce that they now control 1,117 theatres out of the big cities.

This bold stroke on the part of the Shuberts was accomplished through the controlling interest in the Chamberlain, Kindt and Harrington Circuit, which has a string of 150 theatres through the central part of the country. The Shuberts paid $750,000 for this interest. It gives them an interest in the National Theatre Owners' Association, which is fighting for the "open door" policy.

Within the next three weeks developments are looked for by those interested in the theatrical business which will result in the "open door" policy prevailing throughout the United States. The movement is opposed by the "trust," another name for Klaw & Erlanger.

The most significant development, aside from the Shubert move, is the return of Col. Henry W. Savage from Europe to attend the meeting of the National Producers' Association. This organization is affiliated with the looking agency of the theatre owners. Klaw & Erlanger announced that Col. Savage had deserted the producing managers organization to cast his lot with K. & E. His presence at the meeting is strong evidence that Col. Savage has taken no such course.

James Chased From Fireside by the Squire

Three times has Charles James promised before a justice to take up his bed and leave. And three times has he broken his promise.

Charles has been in the habit of living with his wife, Teresa, and her four children at their home on the Swagertown road, once a while, usually at a time when he had stopped by the roadside to dally with the stuff that cheers. If such was the case, after kindling a cozy little fire of the books in the house, he would proceed to see how many dishes he could throw across the room without breaking them. Not many of the articles stood the test and the supply was quickly diminished. As Mrs. James has all she can do to support the family without replacing the household furnishings every now and then, she came before Squire Clark and swore out a warrant charging her husband with threatening, etc. At the hearing yesterday afternoon, James pleaded guilty; also for another chance to get out of the home. He was given until today to remove his belongings, and sentenced to pay the costs.

Two Districts are Thrown Out in Westmoreland

Special to The Courier.
GREENSBURG, June 23.—The case of the primary election contest in Arnold and Hyde Park precincts, was brought to a close last evening when the county commissioners declared 79 votes cast for the Republican candidates were illegal and that the entire vote of the two districts be cast out. Boyd who was declared beaten by 65 votes in the former ward is now declared a winner over Daniel B. Sullivan by 109 votes. At Arnold a ballot had been voted in a dead man's name and two socialist ballots having the same names were recorded for the Republicans. Ballots both regular and samples were found in the Arnold box and some of them not folded either.

Watson of the Christian Church officiated.

Prompt Action on the Federal Building Here

Special to The Courier.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Representative Cooper was at the supervising architect's office yesterday afternoon to urge prompt action on the plans for the Federal building at Connelville. The sum of $60,000 was appropriated for the building by the last Congress, and the present public buildings bill adds $25,000 to the amount for a larger building.

The supervising architect promised Mr. Cooper that the ground floor sketch would be ready in two or three weeks, and that a representative of the bureau would take them to Connelville to consult with the postmaster and others.

Judge Landis Gives the Packers One More Chance

United Press Telegram.

CHICAGO, Ill., June 23.—Judge Kenneth M. Landis, the Federal jurist, who gained fame by putting the $22,000,000 fine on the Standard Oil Company, today sustained the demurrer interposed by the packers against the indictment charging violations of the Sherman anti-trust law.

Judge Landis orders a special Grand Jury to convene July 11 to further investigate the case. He held the indictments were faulty because they contained no averment that the alleged combination in restraint of trade has been in existence within three years since the charges were made.

Importation of Necessaries of Life Coming

United Press Telegram.

ST. PAUL, June 23.—In a sensational speech before the Minnesota State Bankers' convention today President W. C. Brown of the New York Central declared that if present conditions continue within five years the United States will be compelled to import the necessities of life.

He declared the food consumption is rapidly exceeding the production, the gold supply is increasing and its purchasing power is reduced. He said it is imperative that the farms of the country be developed.

ASSAULT CASE

Defendants Settle It Before Squire

Clark by Paying the Costs.
John, Clyde and Claude Don were given a hearing before Justice of the Peace W. P. Clark last evening on charges of assault and battery preferred against them by Walter Kern. The parties all hail from Upper Tyrone township.

Kern alleged that Joe Hixon, urged on by his two brothers, attacked him while he was returning from milking on the evening of June 15. The Hixons have leased a farm from the H. C. Erick Coke Company and Kern rented a house from them. There was trouble between the two families.

The case was settled, following the hearing, by the defendants paying the costs.

Crow the Best Parliamentarian In the State.

Borough Solicitor J. Kirk Renner returned this morning from Harrisburg where he was a spectator at the Republican State Convention. Attorney Renner says the principal topic of conversation on the homeward trip was an almost unanimous commendation of State Senator W. E. Crow's performance as temporary and permanent Chairman of the convention. Attorney Renner says he noted with pleasure the wide popularity and high esteem in which Senator Crow is held by Republican leaders from all sections of the State.

Among the Pittsburgh delegation the idea was advanced, and not disputed, that Senator Crow is one of the best parliamentarians in the State.

Postal Savings Bill is Passed by the U. S. Senate

Special to The Courier.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—After voting down several amendments the Senate yesterday by a vote of 41 to 21 concurred in the House amendments to the postal savings bank bill and thus took the last legislative step necessary to the establishment of a postal savings bank system in the United States. The measure was included in the administration schedule and its passing marks another triumph for President Taft.

In the final action most of the insurgent Republicans joined with the regulars in supporting it, but Senators Bristol, Cunniff and LaFollette refused to yield and cast their votes with the negative. Senator Chamberlain cast the only Democratic vote for the bill. The bill as referred to Taft provides for the designation of post-offices as postal savings depository offices. The opening of such depositories is left to the discretion of a board of three trustees, consisting of the Postmaster General, Secretary of the Treasury and the Attorney General, who will have complete control.

Anyone over 19 years old may make deposits of funds amounting to $1 or multiples of that amount. Pass books will be issued and interest allowed at the rate of 2% per annum. Deposits of more than $100 per month will not be permitted and no one may carry an account of over $500. Withdrawal of funds will be permitted at any time.

United Press Telegram.

The suspect was locked up at the Hoboken police headquarters. The police refuse to allow anyone to see the prisoner, who was subjected to the "third degree." The police say the man admits he is Charlton but says nothing about his wife.

After hours and the "third degree," the police claim, Charlton confessed to murdering his wife. He was arrested following the receipt of a wireless message from Europe.

Auto Fever Hits Sagamore Hill, so T.R. Will Invest

United Press Telegram.

OSTER BAY, June 23.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt is wavering in his famous loyalty to horseflesh. He has been fascinated by the automobile, it is said, in any event, since his return he has travelled extensively in a big racing automobile from Sagamore Hill to New York.

It is now reported that he will secure several cars, from a manabout to a racer, and become independent of train service. There is danger of the stables being transformed into a garage.

BURGESS ISSUES HIS PROCLAMATION.

Discharge of Firecrackers
Before July 4 is Not Permitted.

MUST BE SAFE AND SANE, TOO

Burgess Puts His Foot Down on Dynamite Caps, Cannon Crackers and Other Instruments of Torture—Police Notified to Make Arrests.

Burgess J. L. Evans has placed a ban upon the premature discharge of firecrackers and the small boy and large man who persist in shooting the explosives off before the hour appointed can look for trouble if an eagle eye copier happens to catch him in the act. Burgess Evans says, in his annual proclamation issued today, that firecrackers and other explosives can be fired only between midnight on the third and midnight on the fourth of July.

Firing blank cartridges in revolvers, putting off firecrackers and hurrying dynamite caps are not to be tolerated on the fourth. While desiring to encourage the customary amusements on the fourth, the Burgess insists that it be safe and sane.

There has been a tendency this year not to wait until the fourth to discharge firecrackers. In different parts of town for the past several days there have been sporadic outbreaks on the part of the small boy who has quietly set fire to a pack of firecrackers and stood by to watch the fun. As warning has been given against this practice, the police will arrest offenders they are fortunate enough to locate.

The proclamation by Burgess Evans reads as follows:

"The approach of our more anniversary which marks the independence of the United States, it becomes necessary to regulate the manner in which this occasion is to be celebrated in Connelville. It has long been the custom to discharge firecrackers, fireworks and other explosives on this occasion.

"Therefore, be it known that, as Burgess of Connelville, I take this occasion to state that the discharge of such fireworks and other explosives will be permitted only between midnight of July 3 and midnight of July 4.

"The discharge of firearms, dynamite or any other high explosives is strictly prohibited.

"The police have been ordered to arrest any and all persons discharging firecrackers and other explosives before or after the hours named.

First Train on M. R. R. Since Saturday Starts

Special to The Courier.

UNIONTOWN, June 23.—The first train out on the Monongahela railroad since Saturday evening left this morning at 9:10. It is due to arrive in Monongahela at 12:03 this afternoon but the officials of the road did not expect that it would make schedule time.

Since the terrible storm of Saturday night, which played havoc with the Monongahela tracks through the southern end of the county, traffic has practically been at a standstill.

Not a single train has yet made the trip through to Uniontown up to noon today since the last passenger train pulled in Saturday night.

Town Council Meets Tonight; Little Doing

United Press Telegram.

The regular meeting of Town Council will be held this evening but few Connelville citizens were expected to attend. It is probable that the council will be passed on in order that the borough employees may have spending money for the fourth of July.

As yet no electric sign ordinance has been prepared and that matter remains with the Ordinance Committee. It is not expected that Council will take any action in this matter for some weeks yet.

Sultry Spell Due to Humidity in Atmosphere

The humidity in the atmosphere that has prevailed for the past several days has resulted in the torrid wave feeling more severe than the temperature would indicate. While the mercury has strided steadily in the neighborhood of 80 degrees, most of the time passing that mark, the weather has felt several degrees warmer.

The temperature this morning was 68, one degree lower than yesterday morning at the same time. Last evening at 5 o'clock 75 was recorded. The river continues to drop at the rate of .10 feet a day. The gauge this morning showed a stage of 1.30 feet.

Railroad Files Exceptions in Injunction Case

Special to The Courier.

UNIONTOWN, June 23.—In the equity suit of John S. Griffiths against the Monongahela railroad the defendants this morning filed exceptions to the finding and decree of the court which issued an injunction restraining the railroad from changing the course of Rush run and directing it to pay the costs.

The railroad claims the court erred in not finding that the plaintiff offered no proof of injury or damage and also in not dismissing the bill.

Dispute Over Property of Dead Man is Settled

Special to The Courier.

UNIONTOWN, June 23.—Charged with taking possession of the savings of a dead miner, Frank Sorolla and Joseph Towentz appeared before Squire John Boyle yesterday and settled the matter by returning the property. Joseph Cucanec met with an accident in the mines at Orient on June 11 that resulted in his death. His body was removed to his boarding house, and preparations made for the burial.

Frank Sorolla and Joseph Towentz opened his trunk to look for a suit of clothes for the dead man, they claim. Among the articles they found a gold watch valued at $11 and money to the amount of $56. The money was confiscated for a board bill which they say he owed, while the watch was taken for safe-keeping.

St. Peter and St. Paul's Lodge of Connelville, of which Cucanec was a member, heard of the matter, and President Nicholas Garkovitch has been conducting an investigation with the result that both men were brought before the Justice of the Peace.

As Cucanec had no relatives, the watch, together with the $56 was turned over to the lodge. The money taken from the trunk was used to buy a celebration, the men said, and they replaced it out of their own pockets.

Miller is Held on Charge of Bootlegging

Special to The Courier.

UNIONTOWN, June 23.—The Uniontown messenger Charles Miller, charged with "bootlegging" by County Detective Alex. McBeth, yesterday afternoon waived a hearing before Squire Daniel M. Bierer and William McCornick gave bail in the sum of $1,000 for his appearance at the September term of criminal court. At least 20 out of the 40 witnesses who will appear against him were present to give evidence.

He was arrested last Sunday after 30 pints of whisky had been found at the cobbler's shop of J. R. Bird on Union street, where Miller made his headquarters.

He is alleged to have bought a case of 21 pints for $10 and to have sold it for one dollar a pint on Sundays and 65 cents on week days.

The B. & O. excursion season to Atlantic City opened this morning when the first excursion train was run out of Pittsburgh. As heretofore the company will run excursions on alternate Thursdays during the summer.

CONTAINS 173 ACRES OF LAND

This is Said to be Rich in Iron Ore and Has Never Been Extensively Developed—Narrow Gauge Line to be Built Through Upper Tyrone.

That Scottdale capital is to develop the ore mines above Hammondville, on the old Pershing estate, is rumored as the result of negotiations opened through the agency of O. B. Purinton, representative of the owner of the land. It is expected the deal will be consummated on Monday. When seen this morning Mr. Purinton confirmed the report that negotiations for the property are under way. He declined to state who holds the land.

The tract consists of 173 acres, containing rich deposits of iron ore. In the past the land was not worked to any great extent, only a small quantity being taken out from several openings though it was worked for many years.

To develop the property it will be necessary to rehabilitate the old narrow gauge railroad which was built into that section many years ago. The grading of this road remains in good shape and many of the rails are still in place. It will require but little expense to put the road in shape for traffic.

The purchasers, according to the report, will develop the ore field. Those interested are being kept under cover until the deal is consummated.

Non-Support

Case was Brief;

Hubby Is Back

Special to The Courier.

UNIONTOWN, June 23.—Hannah Townsend, a well known resident of Palmer Works in the Klondyke region, made information against her husband, Joseph Playford Townsend, yesterday afternoon, charging him with non-support. Although the couple are minus children, it is said that about a half a dozen of his relatives make their home at his place, he being expected to provide.

After her husband's arrest, Hannah saw the sights in Uniontown, visiting many points of interest. By this morning she was as ready to make up with her "hubby" as he was, and it is said that things will run fine for the next few years in the Townsend household.

The couple then marched out of Squire Boyle's office as if they had just been married.

Mine Foreman Held for Assault on Coal Miner

Special to The Courier.

UNIONTOWN, June 23.—At a hearing held yesterday afternoon before Squire John Boyle, James Conway, mine foreman of the Footscastle works, was held for court under $300 bail on the charge of aggravated assault and battery.

The prosecutor, Antonio Querreri, alleges that while he was at work in the mine at Scrifrights last December, where Conway was then employed, the latter showed his displeasure at a slight mistake he had made by striking him on the head with a pick. His scalp was cut open, blood ran from his ears, and he was otherwise injured to such an extent that he has been unable to work but little since the assault.

The Italian borrowed the mine's last night in Fairhance, desiring to ride to Uniontown. When seen this morning he said he had lost it. Investigation developed that Gravel had sold the mileage to William Santoro for $5. He was arrested.

THURSDAY EVE'G, JUNE 23, 1910.

THE REPUBLICAN TICKET AND
THE REPUBLICAN PLATFORM.

The ticket nominated and the platform adopted by the Republican State Convention yesterday is creditable to the Republicans of Pennsylvania and deserving of their cordial and earnest support. Political pessimists and visionary reformers will tell us that one way machine-made and the other a narrow set of soundings and meaningless phrases, but the fact remains that the personality of the ticket is above reproach and the words of the platform are justified by the deeds of the party.

The Republican State Platform endorses the administration of President Taft and the Republican Congress and points out the fact that they have redeemed Republican platform pledges to us; letter; disposes of the Democratic criticisms of the Payne-Aldrich Tariff by calling attention to the fact that since its passage wages have increased $500,000,000 per annum, that no increase in the necessities of life can be attributed to the workings of the law and that it is the best Tariff bill the Republican party ever passed.

"praises Governor Starn's honest and efficient administration, and points out that it is a vindication of party regularity and the integrity of party responsibility; promises that the efforts of the Republican administration will be devoted to the securing restitution of the money stolen from the State by the Capital graft gang; pledges continued liberal support to the public schools and charitable institutions, the enactment of further legislation designed to protect the public health, purify our food and water and extend our system of good roads;

invites attention to the fact that despite liberal appropriations for these and other public purposes Pennsylvania is the only great State in the Union which is free from debt; favors investigation and proper remedy for the dangers to communities caused by the removal of coal and attendant dangers to the surface by reason of the sinking of the ground; urges Congress to be liberal in its pension policies; favors arbitration as a means of settling wage disputes; advocates the appropriation of public moneys for the construction of the canal connecting the Ohio river with the Great Lakes; pledges the candidates nominated on the Republican ticket to faithful and unswerving allegiance to party principles and a continuance of wise and economical and honest administration, and commends the ticket to the support of those who favor State Government administration.

There is in neither the ticket nor the platform anybody or anything of which the Republicans need be ashamed or to which they cannot conscientiously subscribe; in short, the work of the Harrisburg Convention makes the nomination of an independent ticket wholly unnecessary. We will doubtless be told that the ticket was boss-made, the platform boss-drafted and the convention boss-ridden; but the cry of boss is an old one American politics, and perhaps much more ancient. Long fellow's patter summed up the situation as it has existed world without end, when he sang:

Turn, turn my wheel! Turn round and round
Without a pause, without a sound;
So spins the flying world away;
This day, well meted with mael and sund,
Follows the motion of my hand,
For some must follow and some command.

Though all are made of clay,
Senator Francis dominated the Republican State Convention because he is the recognized leader of the Republican party in Pennsylvania. If he were not another would be, and from the point of view of the Democrats he would be a Boss. We are not wise to judge any party or any political leader by the denunciations of the opposition. We should judge them, not by words but by deeds. We should judge the Republican ticket and platform on their merits, and so judging them, we repeat that we will find them worthy of our confidence and support.

And watched the waves toss high and I thought of my home I'd forsaken

And of mother I'd left long ago.

As I sat in the tree tops were singing.
The crows in the meadows were lowing
As I thought of my dear old home.

It has now been three years since I left home
To wander from State unto State;
Only last week I received the sad message,
Mother's dying, come home ere too late.

I caught the first train for Pittsburgh,
Arriving, I walked in by her bed,
She threw up her arms to curse me,
Her head fell back; she was dead.

The old Yough river still flows swiftly onward
On its journey far, far away.
The birds in the trees sing sweetest
As they did upon that sad, sad day.

FATALITIES IN THE COAL MINES.

Report of U. S. Geological Survey for 1909 Out.

WAS DECREASE LAST YEAR

Compared With 1908 in Fatal Accidents, But an Increase in the Non-Fatal Accidents—Statistics in Industries From Pennsylvania.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Coal mine fatalities in the United States in 1909 were fewer than in 1908, notwithstanding an increase of approximately 10 per cent in the quantity of coal mined. The figures compiled by Edward W. Parker, chief of the charge, division of mineral resources, United States Geological Survey, show the total number of deaths from coal mine accidents in 1909 to have been 2,472, against 2,150 in the preceding year.

During the last five years the annual reports of the Geological Survey on the production of coal have contained a chapter on coal mining accidents, their causes, and their relations to the number of men employed and the tonnage produced. These statistics are compiled almost entirely from statements furnished by State Mine Inspectors. It is expected that statistics of mine accidents in future years will be compiled by the new Bureau of Mines.

Decrease in Fatalities in 1909.

The decrease in the number of fatal accidents during 1909 is all the more gratifying from the fact that in the statistics for last year are represented four States—Georgia, Oregon, Texas and Virginia—from which no reports of accidents had previously been received. The statistics for these States were compiled from reports received by the Geological Survey from the operators. The number of men killed in 1909 in these four States was 21, which makes the showing for 1909 still more favorable. The statistics of production and of the number of men employed, reported to the mine inspectors, are as yet available for only a few States, and it is not possible at this time to make comparisons of the death rate per thousand of employees in the tonnage mined for each life lost.

From the statistics of production in mine of the more important States, as reported by the State officials, it is estimated that the total output in 1909 was approximately 150,000,000 short tons, against 146,000,000 tons in 1908. According to this estimate the production of coal in 1909 was 158,000 short tons for each life lost, against 167,515 tons in 1908.

In the number of nonfatal accidents the record for 1909 does not compare so favorably with those of previous years as do the statistics of fatalities. The number of men injured last year reached the unprecedented total of 7,529, an increase of more than 10 per cent over 1908, and 1908 showed an increase in nonfatal accidents of more than 1,000 over 1907. Over 500 of the nonfatal injuries in 1909 were reported from the four States the statistics for which were collected by the Geological Survey. It is believed that by far the most important factor in the increase in the number of nonfatal accidents is the growing practice in most of the bituminous districts of "blowing the coal from the rock."

In 1909 out of the 2,112 men killed 1,341, or 63 per cent, were victims of falls of rock or coal, and of the 7,529 nonfatal injuries 5,250, or 69 per cent, were due to this cause. Only 14 per cent of the deaths and less than 5 per cent of the injuries were due to explosions of dust or gas, or combinations of the two. As indicating the relatively more fatal character of explosions as compared with other causes of coal mine accidents, it is to be noted that in the explosions that occurred last year 311 were killed and 351 injured. In the accidents due to explosions or blown-out shots and to explosions of powder or dynamite 108 were killed and 211 injured. Falls of coal and roof killed 1,191 and injured 2,250, while in the accidents due to miscellaneous causes 750 were killed and 2,375 injured. In 1908 the corresponding figures were, from gas and dust explosions, 324 killed and 225 injured; from powder explosions and windy shots, 75 killed and 179 injured; from falls of roof and coal, 1,081 killed and 2,591 injured; and from miscellaneous causes, 961 killed and 2,676 injured. A similar relation is shown by a comparison of the statistics for a series of years. Mr. Parker has compiled a statement of the accidents in coal mines distributed by causes for all the years for which the statistics are available. In some States the causes have been reported only for the last three years; in others the statistics cover a period of 25 years, sometimes intermittently and sometimes consecutively. During this period the total number of deaths for which the causes have been ascertained was 29,274, and the number of nonfatal accidents was 72,555. Of these, gas and dust explosions killed 1,915 and injured 4,191 (two-thirds of the injured being in the anthracite mines of Pennsylvania); powder explosions and windy shots killed 1,889 and injured 11,516 and injured 21,621; and 5,732 deaths and 22,196 injuries were due to other causes. It is to be observed that nearly 50 per cent of the total number of deaths were from falls of rock and that only 15 per cent were due to explosions of gas and dust.

The More Serious Accidents of 1909. The most serious catastrophe which occurred during the calendar year 1909 was the fire at the Cherry mine of the St. Paul Coal Company, at Cherry, Bureau county, Ill. It has been reported that in that disaster 253 men were burned or suffocated.

The most serious single accident included in the statistics presented in this statement was an explosion at the Lick Branch colliery of the Pocahontas Consolidated Collieries Company, near Bluefield, W. Va., on January 12, 1909. In that explosion 55 men were killed and 1 was injured. Another explosion had occurred in this mine about two weeks before in which 51 lives were lost. The Lick Branch explosion of January 12 was the only one of serious proportions which occurred in West Virginia during the year.

An explosion in mine A of the Chicago & Carterville Coal Company at Jerrin, Ill., on December 23, 1909, killed eight men and imperiled the lives of 100 others.

Twelve men were killed by what is supposed to have been an explosion of dynamite in one of the mines of the Canbria Steel Company, near Johnstown, Pa., October 21, 1909.

On April 9 an explosion of dynamite killed seven miners and injured several others at mine No. 37 of the Borwick-White Coal Company near Windber, Pa.

On January 25 four men were killed and eight injured in Washington mine No. 5 of the Piedmont & Georges Creek Coal Company, in Maryland, as the result of a collision between two trips of coal cars.

On March 19 five men were killed and 20 injured in an explosion at the Sunnyside mine of the Sunnyside Coal & Coke Company in Vanderburg county, Ind. Twenty-nine men were in the mine at the time of the explosion, and all but five escaped.

An explosion which caused the death of 20 men occurred on January 10 in the mine of the Zeigler Coal Company at Zeigler, Franklin county, Ill.

What is supposed to have been a dust explosion occurred in April at the Short Creek mine of the Birmingham Coal & Iron Company in Jefferson county, Ala., and killed 18 men.

Pennsylvania.

Different mine inspection laws govern the anthracite and the bituminous coal mining operations in Pennsylvania, and the statistics and accidents in the two regions are compiled separately. Mining in the anthracite region, as shown by the statistics of accidents, is of a more hazardous character than that in the bituminous mines, although there have been a larger number of men killed by explosions of dust and gas in the bituminous mines than in the anthracite. From 1885 to 1909 inclusive a period of twenty-five years, there were 11,491 fatal accidents in the anthracite mines and 6,962 in the bituminous mines. The non-fatal accidents in the bituminous mines have been reported since 1880, and in the 21 years 13,955 men were injured. During the same period the injuries received in the anthracite mines were 23,975. Of the 11,491 deaths in the anthracite mines in the 25 years since 1885, 874 were due to explosions of gas, a little less than 8 per cent.

In the bituminous mines 1,707 deaths out of a total of 6,366 since 1881 were due to explosions of gas or dust. The percentage of deaths in the bituminous mines from this cause was almost exactly double that in the anthracite mines. Falls of rock or coal killed 5,091 men in the anthracite mines during the last 25 years and 3,399 men in the bituminous mines during the last 19 years.

In both the anthracite and the bituminous mines there was a decrease in the fatalities in 1909 as compared with 1908. There was also a decrease in the number of men injured in the anthracite mines, but an increase in the number of injuries received in the bituminous mines. The number of fatalities in the anthracite region in 1909 was 567, as compared with 675 in 1908, and the nonfatal accidents were 1,651 in 1909 and 1,170 in 1908. In the bituminous mines there were 506 men killed in 1909 as compared with 572 in 1908 and 806 in 1907, and the nonfatal accidents in 1909 were 1,126, against 1,019 in 1908. Falls of rock and coal killed 254 men in the anthracite mines in 1909 and 291 men in the bituminous mines. In the same year 18 men were killed in the bituminous mines by dust and gas explosions, and the deaths from gas explosions in the anthracite mines are given at 28. The added danger from dust as an explosive agent is shown by the fact that in the period of 25 years 874 men were killed by gas explosions in the anthracite mines where dust is not a dangerous factor, and the number of men injured from the same cause was 2,342, whereas during a period of 17 years the explosions in the bituminous mines killed 1,019 and wounded 302. There is little doubt that the comparatively fatal character of the explosions in the bituminous mines is due to the added influence of dust as an explosive factor. According to the report of Mr. James E. Roderick, chief of the department of mines, from whom these figures have been obtained, the production of bituminous coal in 1909 amounted to 136,166,477 tons, from which it appears that 269,101 tons were mined for each life lost. The anthracite production was approximately 11,963,000 short tons, which would indicate an output for each life lost of 112,755 tons. In 1908 the bituminous production was 146,000,000 tons, 261,559 tons and the anthracite 122,515 tons. The statistics of the number of men employed in 1909 are not yet available, so it is not possible to furnish comparisons of the death rate per thousand employees.

Being Recently Constructed It Has Had Advantage of Getting the Latest and Most Modern Machinery and Appliances.

The tipple at the Mt. Hope coke plant is parallel with the coke ovens and there is practically no curve in the electric hauled track. This tipple is about 75 feet high and is built of steel and wood with concrete bases. The mine, a drift, is located about 75 feet back of the tipple and there is a slight slope from the mine to the tipple. In order to elevate the tipple sufficiently for storage and that the electric hauled cars may run under it. An electric Jeffrey's motor is used to haul the coal.

There are 75 rectangular ovens at this plant, all in operation. The coal is pushed from the oven and loaded by an electric pushing and loading machine. The fan here is also run by electricity, the electric power being supplied by the West Penn Electric Company.

This company owns over 215 acres of the Pittsburgh colliery coal which they are developing with their excellently equipped plant. There are plans on foot to double the plant the coming summer, building the Mitchell rectangular ovens. In this over $50,000 will be expended.

The fact that it was so recently constructed, being in operation not quite a year, gives the company the advantage of having every part of the most approved appliances and the proposed improvements will be along the same line.

The plant is located on the P. V. & C. division of the Pennsylvania railroad at Lynn Station, about three miles north of South Brownsville, and between the two blocks of ovens at the Cyrilla plant of the Rocks Coal & Coke Company. The elevated tipple crosses the larrie track that connects the two blocks of the Cyrilla plant.

The Mt. Hope Coke Company is capitalized at $100,000 and is composed of Uniontown capitalists, prominent in the coke trade. Its officers are: John M. Taylor, President; Dr. C. H. Smith, Vice President; E. E. Strickler, Secretary and Isaac Taylor, Treasurer.

HARMON ENDORSED

For President By the Democrats of Buckeye State.

Dayton, O., June 23.—After Governor Judson Harmon had been nominated by acclamation in the Democratic state convention the following resolution, prepared by the committee on resolutions and platform, declaring Harmon to be the choice of the Democrats of Ohio for president in 1911, was unanimously adopted, amid whistling and cheers.

"We invite the attention of the nation to Judson Harmon and the work he is doing for Ohio. Two years hence it will have been completed. Then we can spare him for larger duties. He believes that graft in personal affairs is acting on that belief at home, and would act upon it in wider fields. A high sense of duty provides his only motive for official action and his sense of justice alone compels judgment, firmness and strength mark him the man to supplant vacillation and weakness. The nation needs a real man and the Ohio Democracy presents and endorses for the presidency in 1912 Judson Harmon."

Governor Harmon's friends proposed the foregoing resolution and the convention accepted it unanimously in the belief that it was the opportune moment to place him squarely before the country as a presidential candidate. There will be no state convention and no opportunity next year.

The ticket as completed by the convention is as follows:

For Governor—Judson Harmon of Cincinnati.

For Lieutenant Governor—W. Alton Jones of Canton.

For Judges of the Supreme Court—M. H. Donahue of New Lexington and James Johnson of Springfield.

For Attorney General—Timothy S. Hogan of Wellston.

SONS OF VETERANS MARCH

Make Fine Showing in Wilkes-Barre Despite the Heat.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., June 23.—Short business sessions marked the opening day of the convention of the Sons of Veterans of Pennsylvania here and the ladies' auxiliary, as it was necessary for both to adjourn at noon in order to take part in the big parade in the afternoon, which was the feature of the day.

The parade was over four miles of streets and, despite the heat, the men made a good showing. Charles J. Glasser of this city was the grand marshal and the Commander-in-Chief J. M. Pollack of Patterson, N. J., led the main body of the troops with Brigadier General William Baker and his staff, who are in command of the encampment of the reserves here. The officers of the civic body and the ladies' auxiliary followed in carriages and after them marched 2,500 reserves in uniform.

CHAPTER VIII.
THE journey to the Randall plantation, occupying a full day, marked an epoch in Eugene Kirby's life—a fact of which from its inception he was entirely unconscious. Without a single exception it was the first time in fifteen years that he had been received on a footing of equality—even intimacy—with that high type of womanhood to which his birth entitled him and which had been forfeited when he had yielded to the lure of the river and the wiles of evil companions. And, even though he did not forget that his present standing had been won by grace of a girl's ready sympathy, the knowledge did not interfere with a thorough enjoyment and appreciation of the moment.

Under the impression that they were entertaining Colonel Moreau, benefactor and champion of the Randall family, Miss Pleydell and Mrs. Davenport yielded the more readily to Kirby's charm of manner, while the General, conscious that he was acting in some mysterious way as the secret and trusted friend of his halfbrother's escape here, hung on the latter's every word.

Indeed, a more imprudent audience would have found the entertainment irresistible, for Kirby put forth every effort to please, his payment a laugh from Adele or a flush in her pale cheek. Nor were his efforts prompted by egotism, any longing for self exploitation; rather, in fact, they were spontaneous, a tribute to the goddess Fortune, which had graciously associated him with a type of femininity which he had longed to meet and deplored of so doing.

Thus, with its four occupants in the happiest frame of mind and on the best of terms, the roomy, close topped carriage, its sleepy negro driver unobtrusively chucking at the horses, jogged placidly over the gentle roads while Anatole Venable, riding gleefully behind, winced whenever he heard Adele's fresh and care free laughter. It was an unwelcome sound, and more than once he caught himself commenting that it was as unwelcome.

Meanwhile Kirby's good angel—if professional gamblers may be permitted to own one—was in another direction looking after his interests with unabated zeal, postponing his exposure and consequently prolonging his intimacy with the Randalls.

It must be remembered that only Tom Randall and his cousin Adele had met Colonel Moreau, and thus Kirby's exposure as an impostor could only come from these two. The hot headed, vengeful boy was still busy scolding New Orleans for his supposed enemy, and thus his presence at the plantation would be indefinitely postponed until he had either succeeded in tracking Kirby or had abandoned all hope of so doing.

On the other hand, however, Aaron, heeding his cousin's wishes, had accompanied Kirby to the plantation, where he confidently expected to find Judge Pleydell, who had preceded him thither; but, learning on his arrival that the latter had ridden over to his plantation, Aaron immediately followed it so happened, however, that Judge Pleydell, completing his errand, had returned to the Randalls and, taking a short cut through a lane which connected the two estates, unwittingly passed Aaron, who had followed the highroad. Thus when Kirby and the ladies eventually arrived at the old Judge's, supported by a jubilant crowd of negro field hands and domestic servants, was the only one to welcome them.

Standing on the steps of the white veranda while she awaited her husband by its strings, Adele, smiling and flushing by turns, boldly introduced the pseudo Moreau to her father's old friend.

"Colonel Moreau, this is indeed a happy and propitious occasion," warmly responded the Judge, while he shook Kirby by the hand. "And never in my life have I seen so delightful and welcome an alteration as is apparent in the health and spirits of the young mistress of this plantation. What is the magic secret to account for so great a change since last evening?"

"Ah, it was the ride," demurely suggested his daughter, glancing from Adele to Kirby.

"The ride?" echoed Mrs. Davenport. "Stark—no. It was that charming Colonel Moreau, I think he brings the sunshiny we have been waiting for so long."

While the others, with the exception of the moody and despondent M. Venable, entered the house, Adele, offering the excuse that she wished to see her sisters again, sought feverish hither and thither, accompanied by the indomitable Kirby, repaired to the garden. Anatole watching them with broadly, longing eyes.

Presently he became aware that another was as interested as himself, and, turning, he found Croup at his elbow. The old serving man continued for some time to silently scan Kirby's retreating figure.

"Who you say, were that gentleman's name, Marce Anatole?" he at length inquired.

"Colonel Moreau," abstractedly replied M. Venable.

weary horse and boldly entered the gate. In fact, he had ridden at a breakneck pace all the way from New Orleans.

"Your servant, sir," he greeted, bowing to Aaron. "I'm lookin' for the gentleman who come here in the carriage with the ladies."

"Ah," exclaimed Mr. Randall, closely scanning the other, "you're the genleman who came to see Colonel Moreau this morning. Do you wish to see him now?"

Bunce started violently, turning as pale as his overcast condition permitted. "Good God, no," he exclaimed.

"But it was Colonel Moreau who accompanied the ladies," explained Aaron. "And, sir, here he is now."

The old gambler turned with a subdued exclamation of alarm, as if fully expecting to see the ghost of the late lamented Moreau. But instead his startled eyes met those of his partner, who, humming softly to himself, was calmly approaching a white camellia in his hand.

"Come, cheer up, Mr. Bunce. I hope I see you well," greeted Kirby. Then, politely turning to Aaron, he added: "Mr. Bunce is confused. His legs are in the heat has been too much for him. Mr. Bunce is my secretary. He looks relaxed, but is, in fact, very delicate. Might I so far trespass upon your hospitality as to beg a cooling draft for him?"

Aaron bowed gravely and, accompanied by M. Venable, retired indoors. They had hardly left when Bunce's long repressed emotion overcame him.

"A cooling draft," he echoed, with a shiver. "I was a drunk and let it be strong, friend. I always knew you was a fool, Gene Kirby, but I never knew it was as bad as this. All the names in the world to pick from, and you chose the name of Jack Moreau! Why, do you eat?"

"Chance, Larkin, chance," returned Kirby, quite unmoved. "It was the angel of chance who gave me the name."

"Angels? Angels?" caught up the other, his voice faint with the violence of his sarcasm. "Dared if I don't love my best friend, I'll be dogged if I ain't delirious. Skin me if it don't seem like I'm settin' on a garden and hearin' Gene Kirby talkin' about angels! It sounded just like his voice. 'Angels,' he says. 'Him—Cameo Kirby! Poor old Gene Kirby! Why, you must be a brainless chumphead.' He finished angrily, 'don't you know that Tom Randall's been raisin' hell—all over New Orleans, tryin' to run you down?'"

"Well, what of it?"

Bunce, making a gesture eloquent of despair, faintly sought the garden seat and mopped his inflamed face away. "He makes me what of that," he wailed to the surrounding scenery. "You pore, wretched humbug! You know damn well that all places on earth this is the last you should have tumbled into. Now, with sudden energy and decision, 'get ready to get out—quick! My boss is dead beat, but get your angel to loan you one and 'lope for the river. I'll catch you up at Nashville!'"

But Kirby calmly refused the proffered riding whip.

"What's all the reason I shouldn't stay here?" he demanded. "Why should I expect danger from these people—Mrs. Davenport, a Miss Pleydell and her father, a erole named Venable and a Miss Adele?"

"Miss Adele who?" bellowed Bunce.

PENNSYLVANIANS DEVELOP VIRGINIA.

Former Conneltsville Man Writes of Developments About Stonega.

JOHN ADAMS LIVES THERE NOW

He Tells of Coking Center Which Has Grown Rapidly in the Past 15 Years. Now 1,816 Ovens in Plant Started by Dr. T. L. Wentz.

John Adams, formerly a coke man widely known in the Conneltsville region, and for a number of years a resident of Conneltsville, writes The Weekly Courier an interesting letter from Stonega, Va., where he has been located for some time. He says:

"This offshoot of the Conneltsville region is now 15 years old, as that number of years ago Dr. J. L. Wentz, who formerly owned and operated the three Lelensing plants sold out to the H. C. Dick Coke Company. He then left for this part of Old Virginia and purchased several thousand acres of mountain land underlaid with rich veins of coal the surface abounding in timber of choice quality. He then began the construction of ovens to produce coke, the quality of which was the equal of any produced in the Conneltsville region, excepting that turned out by the Prospect Coal & Coke Company near Uniontown.

"To give a faint idea of the growth of the business since the first oven was built, the Stonega Coal & Coke Company, of which Dr. B. Wentz, a son of Dr. Wentz in President, there are 1516 ovens in the various plants now being operated by this company, from Stonega, Va., where he has 100 ovens, Uniontown, 350 ovens; Keokuk, 100 ovens. Besides these they operate two other plants, the Roda and Arns, where a fine quality of steam coal is mined from three mines each, now in constant operation.

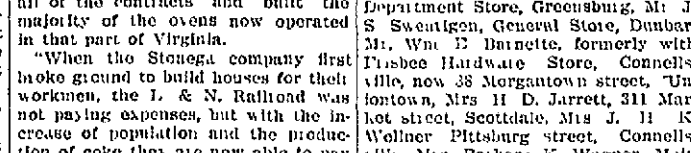

"A. H. Reeder, the general manager, who is a Pennsylvania native, supervised the planning and construction of the Roda plant at Roda, Va., which is without exception the most attractive coal town in any state in the Union. Charles G. Duff, a Lelensing boy, is superintendent of the Stonega operations and William J. Edwards, manager of the company's eight stores. The most of the ovens were built by J. A. L. Minor, once a Conneltsville boy. His father lived in Conneltsville, his three sons going south and doing business in Birmingham as the J. A. L. Minor Construction Company. They received nearly all of the contracts and built the majority of the ovens now operated in that part of Virginia.

"When the Stonega company first broke ground to build houses for their workmen, the L. & N. Railroad was not paying expenses, but with the increase of population and the production of coke they are now able to pay dividends. Wise County, then the poorest in the State, is now among the wealthiest, and owing to the advent of the Pennsylvania people who have made their homes there, Bacon Slump, Republican, was elected to Congress from the Ninth district, once the stronghold of the Democratic Residents of that section, who were originally from Pennsylvania certainly can feel a pardonable pride in reverting to the epoch in the history of the Old Dominion state brought about by are recognized as the critical clothes buyers; they give more thought to style in clothes than older men; and they ought to. When a man gets established in business and in society he can afford to be a little less particular, though many such men are still very exacting.

But young men are apt to give so much thought to style that they neglect quality; if the clothes look smart and lively, young fellows are quite likely to forget to insist on having them good also.

There's no reason why you shouldn't have the smartest style, with the best and highest quality.

Hart Schaffner & Marx

make our young men's clothes; the styles are very lively; but the fabrics are always all-wool, the tailoring is the best possible.

Have style and quality both; just as easy to have both, as to have one. Suits $20 to $25.
